7.2.1: Best practice

Best Practice- 1

Title of the Practice

Voluntary Community Service by the students of the college in the nearby rural area.

Objective of the Practice

To inculcate the spirit of community development among the students

To enhance the capacity building of the students through community service

To educate the students to resolve the problems of the community

To create awareness amongst the community regarding various development plans.

The Context

The main Motto of the Kittel Arts college is community service and the slogan is 'Not to be served, but to serve' the entire community in general and rural community in particular. The NCC unit and NSS unit of the college in collaboration with IQAC execute the plan to cover the areas of community service. The main purpose of the best practice is to boost the rural and agricultural communities to build their self confidence and capabilities. The students in the community service will automatically get courage, leadership, happiness and moreover pleasure. The NCC cadets , NSS volunteers and other students are involved in this community service in an annual camp organized by the college every year.

The Practice

The students undertake community service in the nearby village with the help of NCC cadets, NSS volunteers and other students. The various programmes like environmental conservation, health programmes, literacy, and self employment programmes are arranged in the rural area. Further other programs like Swachh Bharat Abhiyan, Women Empowerment, hygiene and cleanliness were arranged for rural communities. The main program for rural children is 'Marali Shalege' (go to school) is arranged for parents. Further gender equity programmes like 'beti Bachao, beti Padao' are arranged for rural women and men.

Evidence of Success

The institution is having more students from the rural area and the community service to the rural masses is very well known to them. These students will have a special place in their hearts and they themselves will be empowered and have the pleasure of empowering the community. The health camps like the eye checkup and blood checkup camps were arranged which will be very much successful and 125 persons have been benefited. Also in the eye checkup camp around 25 have undergone surgery. Further the blood donation camps undertaken by NCC cadets and NSS volunteers are beneficial to the community.

Other programmes undertaken by the college are clean and green environment, tree plantation, lake cleaning, repair of roads, cleaning of drains etc. These types of programmes in the rural area will create awareness among the rural people about the cleanliness of the area. Also, these programs are very useful at the time of natural calamities occurring in the region.

Problems Encountered and Resources Required

The main problems encountered in the community service is that the students have to stay week-long in the rural area where all the facilities are not available. Further, the community village Panchayat has to be taken into confidence while planning this type of community service. There is also a difficulty in convincing the students to stay in the rural area for a week and also financial loss which should be a challenging task for all the days.

7.1.2 Best Practice- 2

1. Title of the Practice

Involvement of the prominent Alumni and Retired staff in the institutional development activities.

1. Objective of the Practice

- The prominent Alumni of the institution are the role model and they act as a resource person on various events.
- The prominent Alumni of the institution encourage the students in various ways.
- The retired faculty members contribute to the institution in the form of acting as resource persons in various seminars/ conferences and make their expertise for the student community.
- Both the Alumni and Retired faculty members gave encouragement in the form of cash prizes, awards and material benefits.

1. The Context

The IQAC of the institution has taken a decision to involve prominent Alumni and Retired faculty members towards the development of the activities of the students. The institution has organized a national seminar on missionaries' contribution to classical Kannada language for which one of the retired faculty members acted as a resource person. Similarly, the history department has conducted a workshop on 'Modi script' for which the institution requires expertise and one of our retired faculty acted as a resource person who is well versed in that field. In this way, many alumni and retired faculty members contribute in cash and kind towards the developmental activities of the college throughout the assessment period.

1. The Practice

Many prominent alumni and retired faculty members visit the institution frequently regarding the development activities of the institution. Some Alumni members have donated solar panels to the institution, which considerably reduces the electricity bill and in this way, helping the institution towards energy conservation. Also the alumni members and retired faculty members accorded cash prizes to meritorious students, poor and needy students. Few alumni members have donated advanced computers to the institution and also they help the institution in renovation of the old building. In this way, many alumni around the Dharwad city and outside, contribute to the college towards the development of the institution at large. Also retired faculty members always present during the national festivals, literary festivals and contribute their knowledge to the students and faculty members.

1. Evidence of Success

The feedback is collected from the students for the above activities and they are very much happy and highly motivated by the involvement of the alumni and retired faculty members in various activities. During the literary programmes, academic programmes, the guidance of the retired faculty members is noteworthy for the institution. Also, during the golden jubilee celebrations, the support from the alumni and returned staff worth appreciating.

1. Problems Encountered and Resources Required

Many prominent alumni are very busy in their work and sometimes they won't get time to attend the functions regularly. It is very difficult to communicate to all the alumni members at a time, since their addresses are not known. Similarly, some of the retired faculty members are far away from the college and it is very difficult for them to attend the programmes.
